1. [REDACTED] and I met with Major General N. G. White, Major General Vernon Evans, and Colonel William G. Holder at the Pentagon regarding awards by the Department of the Army to personnel on duty with CIA who might be eligible from time to time. It was agreed:

- a. That we could hand-carry to General White or General Evans any recommendation for an award;
- b. That accompanying the classified information would be a proposed citation written in unclassified language;
- c. That no one except General White, General Evans, and Colonel Holder would see any of the classified information;
- d. That after they had reviewed the information and made their decision, all of the classified information could be withdrawn and returned to CIA files. The Department of the Army would then publish the unclassified citation and the only additional information which would become a part of Army files would be a notation that the supporting information was on file at CIA.
